

How to “Turn off your likes” and be a considerate member of the Ubergroup:

1. Go to “menu.”

2. Select “settings”

3. Scroll down to the bottom of the page

Your account →

Settings

Scroll down

Privacy Email Account

Profile settings

- Show my email address in my profile.
- Load social media links at the bottom of Scribophile.

When I post a work...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.
- Allow nobody to see.

When I write on someone's scratchpad...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.
- Allow nobody to see.

When I edit a work...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.

When I give a (non-anonymous) gift...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.

4. Look for “When I react to a forum post”

When I edit a critique or comment...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.
- Allow nobody to see.

When I comment on a Scribophile blog post...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.
- Allow nobody to see.

When I react to a critique...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.
- Allow nobody to see.

When I set a reading reminder...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.
- Allow nobody to see.

When I update my profile...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.
- Allow nobody to see.

When I react to a forums post...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.
- Allow nobody to see.

When I add someone to my favorites...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.
- Allow nobody to see.

When I add a work to the Publication Showcase...

- Allow everyone to see.
- Allow only my groups and fans to see.
- Allow nobody to see.

Save settings

5. Select “Allow nobody to see.”

6. Be sure to hit “Save Settings.”

7. Bask in the knowledge that you are a considerate person who doesn't clog the group feed. Also, please accept the thanks of the Uberlord.